Beg Your Pardon!

Frankfort, Ill. May 15, 1944
Dear Mr. Semmler:

In my "fox" letter as published in last week's issue of your paper, I think a typographical error was made in fourth paragraph.

My copy shows that I wrote: "The killing of predatory animals with heavy charges of shot is not inhuman, trapping, clubbing or dogging these animals down does involve cruel treatment."

Your copy inserts the word "not" in next to last line. If this is your error, maybe you can set me right. I am getting hell for that word "not".

Yours very truly,
Clarence M. Cleveland

Supposed Amnesia Victim Found on Wolf Rd.

Sunday afternoon while Elmer Cooper of Mokena was driving on Wolf Rd. north of Mokena near the Chas. Erickson farm he noticed a young man walking along the highway who appeared in a dazed condition. He stopped and picked him up but the man appeared as though he had suffered an amnesia attack.

When questioned he could not remember who he was, how he got out into the country where he had been or where he was going. He did say however that he did not have any food for two days. Mr. Cooper brought the man to Mokena fed him and then turned him over to Police Chief C. A. Steinhagen of Tinley Park who in turn turned the man over to the county police at Homewood. The man did say he was from Chicago and gave his address as Ohio and Peoria streets. When this address was looked up it was found this is the location of what is known as the Chicago Commons. Nothing further has been heard about the case.

We also hope to have two specialty acts such as a group of professional skaters and the 13 year old Ray Johnson of Chicago with his piano accordion.

We wish Bill Grosskopf lots of luck in bringing these skaters to our show.

The enthusiasm shown by our performers in putting this show over is great. And we hope all the community will back them up with their attendance. Admission tickets are available from any member of the Orland Park Woman's club and at the door.

Frankfort Club Enjoys Sparkling Wit, Good Food

Each year the Frankfort Lions Club members entertain their wives at a fine Christmas party, and on Tuesday evening the wives turned tables on them and at the regular Club meeting held in the Frankfort Methodist church they took over and entertained their Lion husbands under the general chairmanship of Mrs. W. V. Hedges.

The tables were decorated in a most unique manner. The idea of a circus was carried out in miniature circus wagons containing caged lions; miniature circus tents covered the tomato cocktail glasses and places were designated by cardboard lions and lioness, with a small camera picture of the individual Lion's face, the handwork of Mrs. Hedges who is quite a camera fan.

Assisting Mrs. Hedges in arranging the program and tables were: Mesdames Herb. Folkers, Fred Heisner, Geo. Sangmeister, R. Hiroshige, Eric Bizer, Wesley Hollstein and R. Malek.

Following the splendid dinner, prepared by the ladies of the church Mrs. Hedges, by the first stroke of her gavel, a rolling pin, called the meeting to order. She notified the men they could have nothing to say that evening, but that they could remove their coats, the evening being very warm. Then the tail twisters were kept busy collecting penny fines from those who kept their coats on. To further emphasize the silence order, the Lion dummy which always centers the officer's table was muzzled, Mrs. Hedges binding its mouth very cleverly.

Each Lioness served on some committee being designated so by a very fancy badge. Lioness Hedges called for reports from the following committees: Secretary, Treasurer, Ways and Means, Membership, Program, Social, Promotion, Americanism, Recreation, Publicity, Parking Improvements, Sick, Relief, Streets and Numbers, Selecting Dr. Hedges Christmas Gift next year; Frankfort Sign; Streets and Allies and Public welfare. Of course all these reports were humorous and were well received.

With Mrs. A. Krusemark, Jr., at the piano, Mrs. Herbert Folkers led a community song fest and by the hearty co-operation of all even to the lipping and parities the songs were much enjoyed.

Mrs. Mina Malek wrote the speech of the evening "Why Lions Make Model Husbands", but as she was delivering a Mother and Daughter Banquet address out of town that evening, Mrs. Wm. Semmler of Mokena read her speech which ended with a toast to the Lion husbands which they deserved, because they had to take much punishment at the hands of the women all thru the evening. They were game and all had a most enjoyable time.

The tail twisters with Mrs. Raymond Hiroshige heading the group, were: Mrs. Adam Heisner, Mrs. Geo. Sangmeister and Mrs. J. C. Knight and at the close of the meeting they reported the magnificent sum of $2.55 collected in pennies.

A play entitled "Those Husbands of Ours" and which was coached by Mrs. Fred Heisner was presented and much enjoyed by the Lion husbands. Those taking part in it were Mesdames E. G. Bizer, Alfred Zechlin, Emil Lenhardt, Albert Krusemark Jr., Raymond Hiroshige Geo. Sangmeister and Wm. Semmler.

Another interesting part of the program was a Truth or Consequence game conducted by Mrs. Bizer and Mrs. Fred Heisner. The men did excellent in doing their consequences, in which Rev. Bizer and Herbert Folkers directed their own songs, Wm. Semmler auctioned off the contents of his wife's hand bag, Arthur Bauch with a baseball catcher's mask, Geo. Sangmeister with his mouth bound and Dr. Hiroshige with a bird cage over his head, all three sitting on stools on the platform sang a song. It was melodious. And Mrs. Folkers did a good job re-arranging Dr. Hiroshige's hair.

At the close of the merriment, Mrs. Hedges presented lovely silver statues of a lion with their names engraved thereon to Herbert Lambrecht president and to J. C. Knight because they had each five new members as Key to them and also to Mr. Henry Luehring for securing two new members. This Key made them a Key Member of the International Association of Lions.

The dummy Lion was unmuzzled and the meeting turned back to the Lions, president Lambrecht taking over, who thanked the ladies for an evening of splendid fellowship and a jolly good time, to be remembered for a long time.

Broken line indicates territory referred to as "Rommel's defense zone." Swastikas indicate points which have been mentioned as "Rommel's command forts."

Floods have been sweeping the Mississippi river valley, with the water at an all-time high in the St. Louis terrain, inundating great stretches of agricultural land, making many homeless, and wreaking untold property damage. Here is water flowing over the chain of rocks bridge highway, where a break in the Chouteau island levee loosed great floods of water.

BIG VS. LITTLE FARMERS

Forty years have elapsed between the big-business battles of Teddy Roosevelt and Cousin FDR, but one issue which plagued the former is also plaguing the latter and is now before congress. It is the question whether government irrigation, government water, and government reclamation shall benefit the big landowner or the small.

The issue is now one of the hottest fights both in California and in congress, where Secretary of the Interior Ickes has been called to testify on a rider which Congressmen Elliott and Carter of California have skillfully smuggled into the rivers and harbors bill—a rider permitting big landowners in California's central valley to benefit from government low-cost irrigation.

The question in Teddy Roosevelt's day was whether any farmer holding more than 160 acres should benefit from government irrigation. The issue arose when the land kings of the Far West wanted to develop their ranches and speculative holdings through irrigation at government expense.

The West was for it, but the East objected. Eastern states claimed they would be footing the tax bill and that Western irrigation would come out of their pockets. The West replied that the irrigation projects of that day would provide benefits for small Eastern farmers who migrated westward tomorrow.

After a terrific battle, Teddy Roosevelt won out. Congress ruled that government-irrigated land tracts must be limited to 160 acres.

That law still stands. But Republican Congressman Carter of Oakland, Calif., and Democratic Congressman Elliott of Tulare, Calif., have ganged up to change it with a rider exempting the central valley irrigation project.

Their amendment, already passed by the house, would mean that big ranchers in the central valley could benefit from the new irrigation project no matter how extensive their holdings. Even more important, it would mean that a lot of new land, not extensively cultivated at present, would be subjected to cut-throat speculation.

Ickes for Small Farms.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who has supervised the expenditure of $150,000,000 on central valley irrigation, is determined that the benefits shall not go to land speculators and big ranchers, plus some of the big liquor companies which have bought up California wineries.

The issue, according to Secretary Ickes, is whether the U.S.A. is going to become a nation of large landowners hiring Okies and tenant farmers, or whether the nation will feature medium-sized farmers operating their own land.

NOTE—Business men in the central valley are split over the issue. Many merchants believe that medium-sized farms rather than poorer farm labor make for better business in neighboring towns. The Fresno Chamber of Commerce calls 60 to 80 acres of figs an economic unit for a family, or 80 to 120 acres of alfalfa. The Chamber has sent out booklets urging settlers to take up small land tracts.

FOUR-Fs.

Despite all the army howls for 4-Fs to get into war plants, it remains a fact that physical examination in many plants is so stiff that they can't get in. In fact, the physical in some plants is stiffer than in the army.

Many a patriotic 4-F has worn out shoelather making the rounds of war plants, only to find that he can't get in. A punctured ear-drum, for instance, is considered just as important in a war plant as in the army.

In recent weeks, belated steps have been taken to relax some of these physical restrictions, but much still remains to be done. So you can't blame a lot of the 4-Fs if they aren't in war plants.

Another difficulty which the War Manpower commission might well dig into is the fact that anyone can quit work in a vital war plant but, without a certificate of availability, cannot transfer to another war plant—at least, not until after a 60-day period.

In other words, you can step out of an aircraft factory or a synthetic rubber plant and go to work in a barber shop or at a bootblack stand, or just loaf at home. They are not essential industries. But if you want to switch to a munitions plant, you can't—without a certificate of availability (which you probably can't get), or without waiting the required cooling-off period of 60 days.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Busy as he is, President Roosevelt will soon be called upon to settle the problem of whether a rail worker's vacation week is six days or seven. Railroad workers were granted a week's vacation as part of the wage compromise last year, but the railroad executives now contend that FDR meant the vacation should be six days, not seven. If the railroad workers get seven days, they can stay away Sunday, which is a holiday anyway, plus Monday, or an actual total of eight days.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT

Natural rubber is still something of a mystery, even after years of laboratory experiments. It has carbon and hydrogen, but there are other qualities which have not as yet been determined.

Before the war, 60 per cent of the tires and tubes made each year were used as replacements, and 80 per cent of the new motor vehicles sold replaced those annually scrapped.

Brazil rubber selling at $3.05 a pound in 1910 stimulated the development of the Middle East plantations to the extent that 3,000,000 acres were under cultivation in 1915, providing the bulk of the world's supplies.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of a Flying Fortress, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men were killed fleeing for shelter, and Old 99, with many other Fortresses, was demolished on the ground. After escaping to Australia, what is left of the squadron flies to Java, where they go on many missions over the Philippines and Macassar Strait. Sgt. Boone, gunner, tells how Queens die. Nine Forts are out looking for Jap carriers when they meet a flight of "P-40's" who fly with them. Too late they discover the forged stars. The "P-40's"—Jap planes—open up at close range on the Forts and three Queens go down in flames.

CHAPTER XV

"When that chute cracked open, the jerk pitched him out of the harness head-first, and as the chute billowed loosely back of the plane's tail, we saw him dropping down with his clothes smoking, getting littler and littler. Oh, Heaven! I couldn't look any more.

"The plane was settling faster, in that steepening curve now, because it was all over. So we who have seen a Fortress die in battle can tell you how they do it. They die like the men who fly them and fight in them would want them to die! They die like the great Sky Queens they are. And Queens die proudly.

"Just then I heard our pilot Captain Strother over the interphones, telling Jim Worley, our bombardier, that he'd opened the bomb-bay doors, and for the bombardier to go back and salvo all the bombs and the gas tanks carried there.

"Well, Jim Worley is about to obey, but just then he sees a Zero coming right in on us, head-on—and his gun there in the nose is the only one who can handle this attack, so he's got to stay on it.

"He gives her one burst and then starts to salvo his bombs and gas tanks, but there's a crashing sound, and the controls don't work. He doesn't realize a bullet has wrecked his controls—doesn't know what has happened.

"Then all of a sudden—Bang!—there's a hell of an explosion inside our plane, and dust, and the stink of gasoline. After seeing what had just happened to the other two planes, we thought it could mean only one thing. We must be on fire! And later on, ask me about that railroad spike.

"But somehow there were no flames, so we kept on pounding away at the Zeros swarming around us—it was the only thing to do. What had happened was that a bullet had smashed into our compressed-oxygen tank, and also cut a gasoline feed line, so that gas was spurting all over the cabin, but we didn't know it then. Finally the tail gunner, seeing gas streaming along the plane's belly past him to trickle off the tip of the tail, guessed what had happened, and called out to the rest of us over the interphones for God's sake not to smoke. With that cabin filled with pure oxygen and gasoline fumes, it would have been a bad idea. Don't forget to ask me about the railroad spike.

"When we got back to our field and were telling about it, someone asked our tail gunner if he wasn't scared when, right after watching those other two go down in flames, that bullet burst our oxygen system with a big bang. 'No,' he said, 'there wasn't time to be scared. But if someone had pushed a railroad spike into my mouth, I would have bit the head of it off, clean and sharp.'

"The Flying Fortress was designed for the high skies, and if you keep her in her groove, for her crew she's the safest plane in the air and for her enemies the most deadly. We found this out not from any book, but we learned it that day in combat, which is learning it the hard way. And we hoped it wouldn't take too long for this lesson to percolate upstairs."

"On the way home," said Frank Kurtz, "three of the remaining Forts hit a heavy afternoon rainstorm. Visibility and ceiling were zero, and for hours they flew around the island of Madura, off the coast of Java, looking for a place to land. When gas was almost gone they decided to beach them. Luckily no one was killed, but two of the three were completely washed out on the seashore rocks—they set fire to the wreckage so the Japs couldn't find out anything about the planes. But Lieutenant Fred Crimmons did a magnificent job of setting his plane down on the beach in the rain. He made two passes, looking at his gas in between, then squared away and brought her in—she held firm, sinking only a little. I had the harbor-master's wrecking barge, with tools and Dutch engineers, on its way before daybreak. They were having a little trouble with the natives there—they were warned against Jap parachutists, and our boys had to yell at them a password the Dutch had taught them to use if we were shot down: 'Kancha Kom-paneel!' It means 'Our Army,' they explained to us.

"They worked a full day—shoring up the plane, building a base of logs and sand under it, clearing a runway strip. And then, in Java's regular afternoon rainstorm, in came old Freddy onto Surabaya Field. He explained he'd stripped the plane of everything he could un-screw to lighten it and then, turning the motors on full blast, had made a jump take-off from that little strip. He grabbed a sandwich and went on in to Malang.

"The air-raid alarm in Surabaya was now going off regularly, sometimes three times a day, because the Java Sea was stiffer than an old sock with Jap carriers. Colonel Eubank was now faced with a real problem. The three main bases for our Forts were at Malang, Madiun and another town which was spelled Jogyakarta, but the American boys couldn't chew this one, so they all gave it up and everybody just called it Jockstrap.

"The Dutch had no system to detect planes coming in from over the sea. Their only warning system was a tiny island about seventy-five miles out. It had a radio, so Surabaya got fifteen minutes' notice and Malang about thirty.

"So what was the Colonel to do? Our P-40's were badly overworked, so when the alarm sounded, if the Forts took to the air the Zeros might shoot them down, while if they stayed on the ground, the Jap bombers might blow them up. Never were we able to keep more than twelve planes in the air, even including reinforcements, for we were losing them about as fast as they were coming in, and a number were always under repair and therefore un-flyable.

"Also we had some bad breaks in luck. One afternoon Lieutenant Ray Cox had his plane up on a high-altitude test—giving the superchargers a workout. With him in the cockpit was Johnny Hughes, who had been checked off as a first pilot just after we arrived in Java. They finished the test, and at two o'clock were spiraling down when Zeros came over to strafe the field below. These strafing Zeros also had a top cover of Zeros hanging up at 18,000 feet, in case our P-40's might come in to break up their ground party.

"Well, when the strafing began, our boys in the control tower remembered that Ray was up, and they tried to tell him by radio to fly south over the sea for an hour, until the Zeros were gone—that was our usual procedure.

"But Ray and Johnny, alone in this plane, probably intent on their test, must have had their head-phones off. Anyway they couldn't be reached, although the boys on the ground tried frantically to let them know what they were coming down into. Finally they saw three Zeros hit them at 15,000 feet. Ray immediately turned out to sea, while Johnny probably did what he could on the guns. But one gunner can't cover every side at once, and they didn't stand a chance against three Zeros. Next day the plane was found shot down and burned about twenty miles from Malang Field."

"Shortly after that," said Boone, the gunner, "we had a tough little mission—a night flight to bomb a Jap task force which was attacking one of the islands down toward Australia. I forget which one it was if I ever knew—that was the navigator's business. Six of us took off from Malang, but before we started for the target, we had to fly over to Jockstrap and load up with Dutch bombs—they were running low at Malang, and the Dutch at Jockstrap had plenty. Then we took off at eight o'clock at night in some of the dirtiest weather I ever hope to fly. In that country a storm at night is so black it's like going into the closet under the stairs where all the old overshoes are, and pulling the door shut. For our rendezvous we turned on the wing lights. But even with them it took us forty-five minutes to assemble. Then we went up to 18,000 trying to climb out, but we were still in that storm,

It was darker than the inside of a black cow, but every now and then the lightning would rip everything wide open—the whole cloud around us would flame up, and you could see to read fine print in the cabin. We were like a bug in a neon tube. Then blackness would close in, and it would be a long time before your eyes could make out the little blue-pink exhaust flame of the plane next to you.

"After about an hour we had plowed through the storm, and were flying above scattered moon-flecked overcast down below us at about 4,000.

"At 10:30 we were over the target, and we glided down to 3,000 feet to see what was going on. Through the hunks of clouds we could see the gun flashes of Jap warships lobbing shells into that poor old town. Then we would see the flash when the shells exploded. They had fires already going in several places, and of course the town had absolutely nothing to hit back with.

"But clouds protected the Jap fleet, so we couldn't make a run on just where we guessed those gun flashes were the thickest. Bombs were scarce. Orders had been if we didn't find a good target, to bring them home, so we did. We had no flares aboard to light up that harbor, or any installation for dropping them. The old Forts were never cut out for nightwork, but of course in a war you sometimes get into cracks where you use whatever you've got to do what must be done.

"We hated it, leaving that poor old town burning while the Japs sat out there and tossed shells into her, without giving it even a little help—but it had to be.

"On our return we found that storm had moved on down Java and was squatting right on Malang Field. The turf was soaked into apple jelly, and our pilot did a wonderful job on the landing. We were worried, because we knew that a single pound weight on the brakes would start our twenty-five tons sliding over that slippery field like it was the frozen surface of a pond. So to keep from piling up in a crash at the end of the runway (remember, we had all our bombs aboard and couldn't dump them because they were precious), our pilot ground-looped her, so she would start sliding sideways in that muck. Skidding along, he waited until she had revolved in a 180-degree turn and was sliding backward. Of course she would then have crashed tail-first into the end of the field and blown up all of us, but he was able to stop her by gunning the motors. Even if the wheels couldn't bite into that slippery ground, the propellers could bite the air. It was neat.

"Another gripe we had on Malang Field was the food. The mess was in charge of the Dutch. They served only one hot meal a day, and this was always at noon—usually hot soup with boiled beef and potatoes. But I only got to eat this hot noon meal three times—I was always out on missions, which should give some idea how busy we were.

"They had baskets of food for us to take up in the plane—pineapples, tropical fruit, and then sandwiches which were either a slab of cheese, or else raw bacon, in between two thick hunks of bread. We found this heavy stuff made gas in your intestines and just as you got to high altitude going over the target, this gas swelled up, giving you the gripes. So we'd eat the fruit and throw the sandwiches away.

"Also Malay cooks don't know hot food—the breakfast soft-boiled eggs were always hard, and they'd bring out a No. 10 can of jam for a hundred and fifty men. What with getting two or three hours' sleep a night, we all lost weight—two of us lost nineteen pounds and Charlie lost twenty-three, and it wasn't scared off us, either.

"We all felt that with a decent meal we could do a lot more. So as much as we needed sleep, at eight or nine o'clock at night we'd take the Dutch bus into town to a restaurant owned by a Javanese, which had a Dutch waitress who spoke English, just to buy us a thick, rare steak. Americans have got to have red meat to fight on. Give them that and they'll manage to sleep when they can."

"We finally took over the mess, but that didn't help much, because by then the field was being bombed regularly. The mess sergeant had his kitchen blown up three times in a single day, and this didn't improve the flavor of things. But the worst thing was, he'd got hold of three truckloads of Reigel pale beer, and had the cases neatly stacked when a Jap bomb scored a direct hit, leaving not more than three dozen bottles. I never saw men any madder than we were when we came out of our foxholes and word went around they had blown up our beer."

"They'd moved us over to Madiun Field," said the Bombardier, "and we had your troubles and some more besides. When we first arrived there were no P-40's or anti-aircraft guns for miles to keep the Zeros up. But we did have three D-model Fortresses out of commission—they were using for spare parts. So Lieutenant McGee dismounted their guns, and Master Sergeant Silva and I decided to mount them in holes around the airfield. At least these would keep off strafers.

Red Cross Notes

War Fund contributions received by the Chicago chapter from businesses whose employees wished their contributions credited to Tinley Park brought the amount of our War Fund to $1531.30, $251.30 over our quota. Thank you citizens of Tinley Park.

Wanted Workers! Three and one quarter million dressings a month for the next three months is the quota for the Chicago chapter.

Every unit must increase its quota which means that our unit must have more workers. Plan to give every Tuesday for surgical dressings during the summer.

June 1 we are using again the Primary room, this is a lovely room and has the facilities for accomodating more women. We need all who can come. Come in the morning and stay all day.

Our report for April showed 33 workers giving 389 1/2 hours, completing 1800 4x4 dressings. 80 army kits and 10 sleeveless sweat ers.

During April the compliance section of the local Defense Rental office, Harvey, handled 26 violation cases, 6 of which involved refunds by landlords to tenants.

The office received 11 petitions from recent purchasers of property which they had bought for their own occupancy. It was found that all requirements, including the 20 percent cash down payment had been met so certificates permitting the purchaser to take action for possession after three months, were issued in all 11 cases.

Threatened illegal evictions were stopped in 27 cases. Proper notices of eviction were received on 25 properties, all of which were dismissed by continued by the local Justices of Peace because the reasons given were not adequate grounds for eviction under the regulations.

This phase of the work is handled by Joseph T. Wilkinson who may be found every week day between 9:30 and 2:30 in the local office in the Post Office Bldg. Harvey.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 14.

The Golden Text was, "As we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly" (I Cor. 15: 49).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "O Lord our Lord, how extellent is thy name in all the earth... When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained; What is man, that thou art mindful of him? And the son of man, that thou visitest him?... Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet" (Psalms 8: 1,3,4,6).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"In Science man is the offspring of Spirit. The beautiful, good, and pure constitute his ancestry. His origin is not, like that of mortals, in brute instinct, nor does he pass through material conditions prior to reaching intelligence. Spirit is his primitive and ultimate source of being; God is his Father, and Life is the law of his being" (p. 63).

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

I thank you all for the Christmas package, which I received on Christmas day. It gives one a good feeling to remember and be remembered at this time of year. All of us in the service owe you women a debt of gratitude for your efforts bringing home a little closer to us. I hope that someday we will be able to give concrete evidence of our appreciation.

Sincerely,
Jim. T. Pomeroy, Jr.

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

I want to thank you and the American Legion Auxiliary for the fruit cake candy, and the other things you sent me. All was very good and the fellows and myself really appreciated it.

I have seen Bud Cox several times since I've been down here. He looks fine and is the same Bud, always smiling and happy. Ft. Bliss is a better camp than some I've been in.

Climate is ideal this time of the year and we aren't very far from El Paso with Juarez, Mexico just across the bridge from El Paso. So we do have things to do and places to go.

Thanks again for everything and maybe next year at this time we can all be home.

Sincerely,
Marvin Schmadeke

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

Greetings from the sunny south, which also has some cool weather now and then. Your most generous box of Christmas delights arrived a little late due to the fact that Jacksonville which is railroad headquarters of Florida, had a bottleneck in the holidays. es. As I write this letter it is with hopes that I may be home to see your smiling faces in a month if all goes OK. A toast to the Auxiliary thanks to you for your very fine work which you are carrying on to make us boys glad and proud we came from a village of true friends.

War Prisoners Aid

American prisoners in Stalag Luft III, Germany, are eagerly awaiting the arrival of "Archie," who is at present replying in a draw-neck bag in the New York office of War Prisoners Aid of the Y.M.C.A., at 347 Madison Ave.

Archie is a marionette, the leading "heavy" of a company of puppets, and the Y.M.C.A. is shipping him in answer to an urgent request from the camp. The puppeteers, those vicarious Thespians who shine only through the antics of the little actors they manipulate with threads, have made other marionettes. But Archie is something special.

The king of puppets is 18 inches tall, cunningly made of wood with steel joints. His hair is lemon-yellow and his nose, bulbous and very red, contrasts alarmingly with his green eyes. His expression is one of soft and sardonic amusement. Archie's silk clothes are ruffled at neck, wrists and ankles, and striped with rainbow colors. Perhaps he expects to meet his dream heroine among the puppets at the camp.

This is only one example of the wide range of leisure-time activities which War Prisoners Aid of the Y.M.C.A., a participating service of the National War Fund, stimulates and implements. World headquarters of the organization are at Geneva, Switzerland.

EVERYBODY INVITED!

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Guess we're pretty lucky in our town, Judge, that we don't have the youth problem you read about in other places."
"Don't know as you can call it lucky, Harold... we saw it coming with the war and we did something about it before it hit us. We gave our 'teen age youngsters the recreational facilities they needed and really wanted. Those familiar with this wartime problem know that young folks go to places they shouldn't only when the proper places are not provided for them. Young people always want to be with others of their own age... want their own type of entertainment. Town after town has found out that once these simple wants are met, the problem is well on its way to being licked."

"Guess I didn't really know how farsighted our town really is, Judge. If we hadn't looked ahead we wouldn't have had anybody or anything to blame but ourselves, would we?"

No Gas-Less Oats

A Democratic Congressman from Oklahoma, member of a House subcommittee investigating gasoline rationing practices, cites the experience of a farmer in his state who couldn't sow his oats because two ration boards each contended the other should issue his gas ration.

The farmer has his farmhouse in Pottawatomie County, while most of his land is in Seminole County. So he applied to the Pottawatomie Board for gasoline for his tractor, but was told he should go to the Seminole board. The latter board refused the request, telling him he really belonged to Pottawatomie in the first place.

The buck-passing continued for several days while the farmer, forced to leave his work, used up gasoline shuttling back and forth between the two counties seeking relief. By the time he finally got the gas, he had to give up planting 160 acres of oats in the heart of a region where there is an acute feed shortage.

The Congressman told the chief of OPA gasoline rationing enforcement that OPA maladministration is forcing honest citizens into technical violations of OPA rules "so they can get on with the war. OPA rulings and misapplications of regulations are making violators out of American people who don't want to break any laws but are forced into technical breaches so they can do their jobs."

WHY
are hard to get

The telephone business is deep in the war and getting deeper all the time.

The farther American forces advance, the more switchboards, wire and telephones they need. And folks at home want more, too.

Since the National Defense program started in 1940, we have supplied the needs of Army, Navy, war producers and most others. In all, the Bell System has increased the number of telephones in service by over 4½ million.

The equipment to do this came from reserves that are about used up. No more can be made for civilian use. That's why we can't fill orders as fast as we'd like.

If you are one of those who are waiting, we'd like you to know we will take care of your needs at the earliest possible moment.

Make way for Spring! Clean up, paint up, brighten up your home to welcome the queen of the seasons! And remember—housecleaning time is the time to check over your electric appliances and lamps.

Turn vacuum bag inside out, brush thoroughly. Do not wash it. Clean brush. Properly adjust nozzle and brush. Follow the manufacturer's instructions for lubrication.

Defrost. Wash inside, shelves, coils, etc., with baking soda and lukewarm water. Dry. Talcum gasket. Wash exterior with warm, soapy water—dry. Oil mechanism if not sealed.

Clean iron when cool, using damp cloth. To remove starch, use small bag of salt or paraffin on hot iron. Never use knife on iron. Do not wind cord around hot iron.

Ask for our booklet on "Lighting and Lamps." It's easy to clean lampshades and easy to make them almost new again. Replacing dark linings with light will improve illumination.

Clean lighting equipment gives up to 50% more light. Remove and wash bowls and reflectors. Clean bulbs with damp cloth; use soap and water if very dirty. Never place bulbs in water.

WOMEN'S SERVICE NEWS

My dear Ladies:

Yours was the first of the Easter cards to reach me and it came just at the time when we were seeing quite a bit of warfare and it was a real lift to receive the good wishes of friends back home. I thank you heartily for remembering me. I hope all of you had a better Easter than I had.

Italy is all dressed up in her spring attire. With the help of an occasional shower the leaves come cut fast on the trees. Some of the small trees are in bloom and nearly all the shrubbery is in bloom with white flowers. They look a lot like our bridal wreath back home. And there are some pretty yellow flowers which are the shape of bleeding heart. The ground is covered with patches of tiny white flowers that look like strawberry blossoms. Also there are large patches of deep blue flowers and the only familiar flower I've seen is the violet. For the first time I've seen poppies growing. There are large blood red patches of them here.

Hope all of you are well. Keep up with your good work and may God bless you all.

Sincerely,

Mark A. Hotchkiss, Somewhere in Italy.

Charming Off-Duty Dress Chosen by Wacs

Here's Corporal Margaret Snyder of Duluth, Minn., in the new dress just added by the War Department to the authorized uniform of the Women's Army Corps. Ready before mid-summer, it will be purchasable at cost from the Quartermaster Corps which developed it after getting the views of the Wacs themselves.

Proud of being in the Army, they were all for a dress with military aspect as this new washable rayon shantung, shirtmaker type one-piece costume of flattering creamy shade called "military beige" shows.

Corporal Snyder wears the "summer" dress; the "winter" off-duty uniform will be of lovely soft-finish all-wool crepe in a shade called "horizon tan," same design.

Alike for enlisted and Army personnel, this dress is part of a new and attractive ensemble, including new WAC garrison cap of matching material; brown shoes of commercial design with closed toe and heel, and regulation cotton chamois gloves.

You'll soon be seeing members of the Women's Army Corps in these charming dresses during times when they can relax from vital Army jobs.

Preserve The Bill of Rights

Seizure by troops at the direction of President Roosevelt of the Montgomery Ward plant in Chicago constituted probably the gravest threat to the Bill of Rights in 150 years.

Discussion of the incident, important as it is to the future of America, cannot be a matter of politics, Senator Harry F. Byrd, a Democrat, in a speech delivered in the United States Senate, voiced the nationwide reaction to an episode characterized as a "dictatorial act of arrogance" and "a colossal blunder".

Vigorously condemning the drastic steps taken by the Roosevelt Administration in the Montgomery Ward case, Senator Byrd declared: "For the first time in the history of our country we witnessed the spectacle of the Attorney personal charge of military acting as a generalissimo in General of the United States forces to seize a non war business operation."

"Have we reached a state, in this country that the directives of a Federal bureau can be enforced at the point of the bayonet? If the directives of the War Labor Board can be so enforced on a non war business operation, then so can the directives issued by the Office of Price Administration, the War Production Board, and the dozens of other Government agencies, with the result that the constitutional right of the citizens of America to adjudication of their rights in the proper court of law will be denied to them.

"...Today the American people are in the hands of a centralized and entrenched bureaucracy such as America has never before known. It is imperative, so as to preserve our freedoms, that we safeguard the rights of the individual citizens to appeal to the courts, and require that differences that may occur between the citizens and any bureau of the Government shall not be settled by military force, but shall be determined by the Congress and the courts.
